

PHILIP KNOX TO TELL ABOUT WONDERS OF SKY

Great sky wonders found and filmed by Palomar's giant glass will be shown on the screen and narrated by Philip Knox in person Sunday evening as he presents his program, "Today's Amazing Universe."

These programs are presented free of charge by the Seventh-day Adventist Church and all denominations are invited to attend and gain inspiration gathered from the heavens.

Held often in the largest churches of all denominations, Philip Knox, descendant of John Knox of Scotland, will tell the findings of the world's foremost astronomers beginning Sunday. He speaks for six nights at the Torrance Civic Auditorium, lectures beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The latest screen pictures of sky wonders filmed through the giant Palomar telescope reveal billions of blazing suns, whirling worlds, mystery moons, and sweeping comets.

Knox is known as "the harmonizer of science and religion," combining his knowledge of astronomy with practical Christianity.
